Allies Sieze
2 Key Points
From Nazis

By EDWARD KENNEDY
Allied Headquarters, Algiers, Nov. 6 (AP)—Allied forces in Italy smashed away the last remnants of the Germans' powerful Massico Ridge line in taking the key points of Vasto on the Adriatic and Venafro in the upper Volturno Valley, it was announced today.

Forging ahead in the western sector, British patrols of the Fifth Army crossed the Garigliano river to probe the new line which the enemy has formed north of there.

Americans of the Fifth Army drove ahead into the mountains after occupying Venafro in a fierce fight in the tortuous upper reaches of the Volturno.

Root Fresh Troops
The Germans attached such importance to this mountain fastness that they threw in a new division—the 305th Infantry—into the fight in a last-minute effort to save it, but even these fresh Nazi fighters from the north were routed by the Americans.

In the air war, American medium bombers knocked out a large portion of the German air forces operating from Albania with a heavy raid yesterday on Berat Kuov airfield in the center of the tiny country. The field was one of the bases from which the Germans were operating against patriot forces in the Balkans.

There now are five German divisions in battle on the Fifth Army front, it was disclosed, and three opposing the Eighth Army.

In addition to a five-mile surge up the Adriatic coast to take Vasto, Eighth Army troops also made gains of a mile and a half in the region some 25 miles inland, capturing Pietracupa, Sessano, and Duronia.

Blast Airfield
The Nazis still are resisting at some places along the north bank of the Trigno river, but their forces are threatened on both sides by Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's troops, and they are not likely to stay much longer.

The crossing of the Garigliano by British patrols was made near the Tyrrhenian coast, where the enemy flooded fields near the river. These patrols went into the hills north of the river to feel out German strength.

U. S. Mitchell bombers and P-38 Lightning escorts devastated the Berat Kuov airfield, one of the bases from which the Germans are operating against guerrilla forces in the Balkans. There the Germans had concentrated Stuka dive-bombers outcropped on the battlefields of Italy but still deadly against the guerrillas who lack air support.

P-40 Warhawks struck at the port of Split in Yugoslavia scoring several bomb hits on a 200-foot merchant vessel.

No Extra Gas For Trips To Florida

Any motorists who anticipated getting special rations of gasoline from the Office of Price Administration for motor trips to Florida or other southern states for the winter, are out of luck. Frank J. Loftus, acting director of the Harrisburg OPA district, said today.

In a directive to War Price and Rationing boards, Loftus calls attention to OPA regulations that forbid the allocation of gasoline for such trips, even though doctors certify the trip necessary for health, or on the claim that such travel will result in a net saving of petroleum products by reducing consumption of fuel oil for heating northern homes.

It is reported that some ration boards have been literally "swamped" with applications for special rations to drive to Florida and other southern resort communities. OPA regulations clearly state that it is a violation to issue special rations for travel to a more favorable climate for reasons of health, it is pointed out.

Special OPA Rules
For Servicemen

Servicemen on leave will be able to get temporary food rations without the forms usually furnished by the armed services, the district OPA office announced today. Effective November 11 application for ration points may, in an emergency, be made on forms available at local ration board.

As a rule a serviceman on leave is expected to apply for his temporary food rations on a form supplied by the armed services, and signed by an authorized officer. He should get this form at the army post when he applies for his leave papers.

However, where a serviceman does not have this signed form when he applies to his local ration board for points, and cannot get it conveniently, the board will now permit him to use an OPA form instead.

UNIFY NAVAL TRAINING WORK

Announcement was made today that the Naval Air Primary Training command has taken over control and operation of the Navy's 17 flight preparatory schools and 90 CAA-War Training schools, including Mt. St. Mary's college at Emmitsburg, as part of the Naval Air primary training program.

The Flight preparatory and CAA-WTS units formerly were under the direction of 14 Naval Aviation Cadet Selection boards, which will now function as regional offices of the NAPTC, it was stated. Mt. St. Mary's V-5 program Naval Air cadets were under the Washington Naval Air Cadet Selection board, and was the only school maintained by the CAA-WTS in Maryland.

The entire command is under Rear Admiral Elliott Buchmaster, USN, Chief of Naval Air Primary Training. Other units of the command consist of five pre-flight schools and 14 Naval air stations scattered throughout the United States.

Consolidation of Flight Preparatory and CAA-WTS units under the NAPTC integrates the entire Naval air primary system under a single jurisdiction, it was stated, with cadet procurement left to the regional offices of the Naval Officer Procurement. It also lengthens the training time for the cadets from 12 months to from 16 to 18 months in order to give a more complete training program to the cadet aviators.

Accident Victim
Improved Today

William C. Allan, 92, Ottawa, Canada, who was struck by an automobile Friday afternoon on Baltimore street, was reported slightly improved at the Warner hospital this morning.

The nonagenarian Canadian, who makes his home here each winter with his daughter, Mrs. J. P. Dalbey, Baltimore street, suffered a fractured right leg, cerebral concussion and lacerations of the scalp and face when he was struck by a car driven by Merle Cromer Myers, Carlisle street, shortly after noon Friday.

Borough Officer Charles W. Culp, Jr., was continuing his investigation into the case today.

Finish First Part Of Official Count

Judge W. C. Sheely and others taking part in the official count of the balloting in the election Tuesday completed their preliminary work at noon today.

The group is planning to await the count of the soldiers ballots next Friday before tallying the county totals for the various candidates. They began their work Friday. Judge Sheely, Commissioner's clerk Clarence C. Smith, Clerks J. B. Bushey, Biglerville R. 1; L. U. Collins, Gettysburg R. 1, and Associate Judge A. Dale Knouse are assisting in the count which was made in the law library at the court house. The count is under the direction of the court because two of the county commissioners were candidates for re-election.

TEACHERS ARE PRAISED FOR RATION WORK

Donald P. McPherson, Esq., chairman of the Adams County War Rationing board, today issued the following statement expressing his appreciation and thanks for the service rendered the board in issuing ration book 4 and for previous services:

"The teachers of the Adams county schools are to be congratulated again on the splendid work they did in issuing War Book 4 to the citizens of the county. Whenever there has been a difficult task to be performed, the OPA has called upon the teachers.

"In May, 1942, the teachers issued 38,227 of War Book 1, and later the same month handled the original registration for the temporary gasoline rations. In July, 1942, the public returned to the schools for the gasoline 'A' books. In November, 1942, the school teachers registered the serial numbers of the tires of each 'A' book holder, and in the same month, issued 37,865 of War Book 2. At other times, some of the school teachers issued industrial sugar and canning sugar.

May Be Last Call

"When War Book 3 was issued, a new plan was tried, but it did not measure up to the standard set by the teachers, and the teachers were called upon to issue Book 4.

"A total of 37,387 Book 4 was issued in Adams county.

"Each of these programs demanded the time and energy of many careful, intelligent workers. It required many thousands of man hours to distribute these books and to do this other work.

"This may be the last time OPA will have to call upon the teachers. Of course, no one knows how long the war will last.

Consider New Plan

"OPA hopes to make War Book 4 last for almost two years. Sometime in 1944 stamps may be given the value of ten points each. The housewife will receive her point change in small fiber tokens.

"As no meeting of the teachers to receive instructions was necessary for this registration, the banks of Adams county willingly acted as custodians of the books and supplies, over the week-end, so that the teachers could get their supplies near their home or school. This resulted in saving gasoline and tires.

"Volunteers help practically every day at the ration boards, so that boards can keep somewhere nearly up-to-date on their work.

Those Who Helped

"It should be encouraged to all patriotic Adams countians to realize the splendid cooperation that is being extended to help the war effort as put forth by the local War Price and Rationing board."

Following is a list of persons who have helped, and are continuing to help in the current issuance of "A" gasoline renewals, of which 2,500 (Please Turn to Page 2)

RELIEF PAYMENTS

State Treasurer G. Harold Wagner today reported that direct relief payments made to needy residents of Adams county during the week ending Friday showed a decrease of $1620 under the previous week. Payments for the week totaled $284.50, a decrease of 50 cents from the comparable week last year.

Lieutenant Nichols, of the York Recruiting office of the WAC will address the Women's Auxiliary of the Albert J. Lentz post of the American Legion Monday evening at a meeting at the Legion home at 8 o'clock. Lieut. Nichols will speak on "WAC Recruitment in Adams County."

MRS. COLEMAN
TO HEAD DRIVE
FOR WACS HERE

Mrs. J. Walter Coleman, president of the Woman's Club of Gettysburg, has been appointed chairman of the WAC All-States recruiting campaign for Gettysburg and vicinity by Burgess Fred G. Pfeffer. Burgess Pfeffer was asked by Governor Martin to sponsor a WAC recruiting campaign in this area this month.

Following her appointment Mrs. Coleman announced the following executive committee to assist in the drive:

Mrs. Samuel Reed, Mrs. Clyde D. Berger, Mrs. C. Richard Wolff, Mrs. Charles Lawver, Mrs. Leroy H. Winebrenner and Mrs. Henrietta Blocher.

Enlist Other Women

Representatives from other women's organizations will be invited to assist in contacting every available WAC prospect in the county in the interest of the campaign to recruit 70,000 women to relieve service men for combat duty.

A WAC recruiting booth will be set up in the lobby of the Hotel Gettysburg next week where WAC prospects may receive all the information on this branch of women's service in the war effort.

A county-wide rally is also being planned for some evening next week at which WAC prospects will view a 12-minute film on WAC life, be entertained by entertainers from the 55th College Training Detachment of the Army Air Corps at Gettysburg college and hear a WAC speaker highlight the features of this branch of the service.

Attractive Service

WAC recruits are being sought for service in the Air Corps where the need for WACs is especially acute.

Mrs. Coleman said that she is hopeful of recruiting at least twenty women for this branch of service.

"It is an especially attractive service for young women and those up to the age of 50 who are willing to serve their country," Mrs. Coleman said. "Many are not aware of the advantages of serving with this unit and it will be our task to impart this information to all the women of the county."

DAR HEARS OF
"EVOLUTION OF LIGHT," FRIDAY

An illustrated history of the "Evolution of Light" was presented by Mrs. Walter H. Danforth, Mrs. G. W. Lefever and Mrs. Anna Plank at the November meeting of the Gettysburg chapter of the DAR, Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. C. Ross Shuman, East Broadway.

In the absence of the regent, Mrs. R. S. Saby, the vice regent, Miss Alice Black, presided.

In connection with the program, there were on display many unusual types of glass, pewter and brass lamps and pottery, brass and china candlesticks.

Miss Jean Taylor, Biglerville, presented a group of songs accompanied by Mrs. John Hauser, also of Biglerville. She sang "The Sylvan Song," by Grieg; "My Lover Was a Fisherman," by Strickland, and "When I Was Seventeen," a Swedish folk song.

Meet Next in January

Mrs. Danforth, in presenting the early history of lighting, designated the burning of dried rushes which had been dipped in grease as the first method of lighting. Pine torches and candles followed, she said. Mrs. Lefever traced the development of the lamp from the first vermilion oil and fat lamps through various types of kerosene and gas burners. She said that many of the developments in lighting were brought about by the need for brighter lights in coastal light-houses. Gas, first used in Peking, China, was not used commercially for many years after its discovery. Various types of electric lights and modern improvements were described by Mrs. Plank. She listed fluorescent lights as the "best and cheapest yet discovered."

Assisting Mrs. Shuman as hostesses were Mrs. Lefever, Mrs. Hauser, Mrs. Edgar L. Deardorff, Mrs. Hillary Kennedy, Mrs. Harvey D. Hoover and Mrs. Willard Mossman. The next chapter meeting will be held Friday, January 7, at the home of Mrs. J. Kermit Herter. No December meeting will be held.

YANKS AWAIT
JAP'S ARMADA
OF 53 SHIPS

Southwest Pacific Allied Headquarters, Nov. 6 (AP)—Possibly 53 Japanese heavy and light cruisers, destroyers, transports and freighters—new stakes in the deadly game raging to a decision in the Solomons—are moving on Rabaul from Truk to within range of massed hundreds of American bombers.

Already the first bombs have hit one of the five southbound convoys in what shapes up as likely to be the most violent action since a 22-ship enemy convoy was destroyed by Allied planes last March in the Bismarck sea off New Guinea.

Headquarters reported today the spotting of the enemy fleet units by sky patrols and a spokesman made clear their every move is being watched by this careful listing.

Carefully Listed

NINETEEN SHIPS—Five heavy cruisers, three light cruisers, five destroyers, two corvettes, a whaling ship and three large freighters or transports—seen Thursday northwest of New Ireland. A Liberator shadowed and photographed this force for two hours.

NINE SHIPS—Destroyers and possibly some cruisers—sighted Friday 60 miles from Kavieng.

TEN SHIPS—A heavy cruiser, five destroyers, three cargo ships and a tanker—spotted moving in two sections Friday north of Mussau island, and one of the destroyers was bombed.

NINE SHIPS—Two heavy cruisers, four light cruisers and three destroyers—seen Friday 200 miles northeast of Mussau.

SIX SHIPS—Three destroyers and three cargo vessels—attacked by Liberators Wednesday while 135 miles northeast of Kavieng. One cargo ship was left listing heavily and another adrift by bombs dropped as the destroyers filled the sky with ack ack and 20 escorting enemy fighters tore into the Liberators.

Down Interceptors

Four and possibly seven interceptors and one of the Liberators were shot down into the sea.

There was some likelihood of duplication in the reports of aerial spotters but it remained evident (Please Turn to Page 2)

Scouts Honored

In a special investiture ceremony, five scouts who joined the troop since February were formally received into the troop. Patrol stunts were given that covered the advancement program, hobbies, an outline of a year of troop activities and a humorous sketch on "How Not to Camp."

Attendance awards were given Sydney Poppay, Panther patrol leader, and William Snyder, troop scribe, and special awards were presented to the boys who have attained first class ratings in less than a year of scouting by Vernon Corle, scout committee chairman. The scoutmaster announced Poppay is being made scribe while Snyder becomes Panther patrol leader. Other scout promotions announced included: William Bushman as assistant leader of the Panther patrol; Bruce Westerdaal as leader of Pine Tree patrol; Robert Williams, assistant to Westerdaal, and Jack Ridinger as troop quartermaster.

Boche Driven
From Dnieper
River Bastion

London, Nov. 6 (AP)—Kiev has fallen to the victorious Russian Army, Premier-Marshall Joseph Stalin announced today in a special order of the day.

The key Dnieper river bastion and ancient capital of the Russians fell to Soviet columns which had been poised above and below the city for weeks after the Soviet offensive carried to the river barrier.

Suddenly, the Russian columns swung into action two days ago, blasting great holes through the Nazi positions and closing into the city.

Nazis Escape Encirclement

The German high command had announced a few hours previously that the great fortress had been evacuated with German troops pulling out under the threat of encirclement.

The German announcement, broadcast from Berlin, said also that other Soviet columns had renewed their attacks on both sides of the Kerch Straits in the eastern Crimea, and against the Perekop Isthmus, the northern entry to that peninsula.

German withdrawal from the great cathedral city came barely 48 hours after the Russians launched a surprise attack against the northern and western suburbs from their bridge-head base on the west bank of the Dnieper river, 16 miles to the north.

Breaching two German defense lines guarding the city, the Russians outflanked the enemy's positions on the west and north, leaving only a single escape route to the southwest open.

Use Only Escape Route

It was this route which the Germans evidently used to complete the evacuation of the city.

Announcement of the abandonment of this third largest city of the Soviet Union and capital of the Ukraine, which was captured by the Germans exactly three months after the Nazi Armies crossed the Russian borders, came on the eve of the 26th anniversary of the Soviet Revolution and climaxed the victorious Red Army's gigantic autumn campaign.

JAPS MUST BE SMASHED SAYS WAR OBSERVER

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
The Associated Press
Two days ago this column reported that the Japanese militarists who rule Nippon, recognizing they are doomed to defeat in this war, were said to be consolidating their new bloc of Asiatic nations with the idea of leading them against the white races twenty-five years hence.
Since then representatives of the Jap government and five puppet states have met in Tokyo to establish "the Assembly of Greater East Asiatic Nations." These countries are the new Philippine republic, the Nanking government of occupied China, Thailand, Burma and Manchukuo.
There lies another grave threat of a terrible war of races. True, only two of these controlled states—Thailand and Burma—appear to be offering the Japs whole-hearted support. However, it's a disquieting fact that some of the others are giving a considerable degree of cooperation—unwilling, perhaps, but still cooperation.
Two Operations
What is the answer of the United Nations to this menace? It seems to me that our action must be divided into two operations: (1) The defeat of Japan and her supporters in this war, and (2) removal of the grievances and heartburnings which tend to turn the peoples of the Orient away from the Western world, and make possible the formation of an Asiatic bloc which is built on animosity toward the white races.
In the first place the Japs must be smashed and rendered utterly important to make war again. This cuts deeper than the surrender and disarmament of Nippon, for Japanese aggression comes from the malignant growth of militarism. In order to get peace this cancer must be destroyed.
Japanese militarism is even a greater menace than the Prussian brand which is the root of all Germanic evil. The Jap militarists not only plot aggression for gain but, as we see, they hope to precipitate a horror of racial warfare which would pit the Orient against white civilization.
Wipe Out Militarists
I've been asked how I would deal with the Japanese militarists. Well, that's a tall order, for I'm neither judge nor jury, nor yet the public executioner. However, it seems quite clear that the entire militaristic bloc, running to large numbers of officers, must be put out of circulation permanently. Of course, there are various methods of removing evildoers from society, but the great essential is that the removal shall be for all time.
With that unsavory job out of the way, the Allies will have to embark on the task of educating the Japanese people into friendly relations with the West. That won't be easy. Possibly we have a concrete gauge of the task right here at home in the difficulties which we are encountering with the Japanese disloyalists in California. However, many students of the question feel sure that this great work can be done.
Causes of Distrust
Meantime the Western powers have to remove the causes of distrust and misgivings which exist even among our Allies in the Orient. Probably a bit of self-analysis, to see that we ourselves are getting off on the right foot, would be in order. We could have the wrong attitude in some things, you know.
My personal observations in the Orient leave me in no doubt that the Eastern countries fear, and in some cases believe, that America and Britain are bent on exploiting them. As I've reported to you before, even China and India fear that the Atlantic Charter is meant for the West and not for the East—that the Western Allies are planning separate sets of rules for the two parts of the globe. These suspicions must be removed by deeds, not words, if the Jap idea of an anti-Western bloc is to be killed.

London, Nov. 6 (AP)—British Mosquito bombers, in a quick follow up to a record American daylight attack yesterday on two Ruhr cities, attacked targets in western Germany last night, the Air Ministry announced today.

The objectives attacked in the night assault were not immediately named, nor was there any hint of the size of the raiding force.

Yesterday, a huge fleet of American heavy bombers estimated at 700, loosing one of the heaviest air blows ever dealt to western Germany, blasted industrial and rail targets at Gelsenkirchen and Muenster in the wake of a similar staggering assault on Wilhelmshaven.

Huge Armada
The sky armada, totalling upwards of 1,000 planes with fighter escort, bored through a wall of anti-aircraft fire which one pilot said was "as intense as hell and as thick as raindrops" to reach its objectives. In the day's operations, which included attacks on northern France and Belgium, losses were 10 heavy bombers, two medium ones and five fighters as against 38 enemy fighters. Five heavy bombers were lost in the Wilhelmshaven raid.

The assault on Gelsenkirchen, where great synthetic oil works make that city a target almost as important as the Ploesti oil fields in Rumania, evidently was aimed at wiping out the Nazis' fuel sources, lack of which already has forced them to abandon aircraft on the ground in the Italian theater. Gelsenkirchen, situated on the Dortmund-Hamm railway about 20 miles west of Dortmund, has been bombed 45 times since the start of the war.

Railway Center
Muenster, which has been hit 23 times, is an important railway center about 60 miles northeast of Dueseldorf, which was pounded by the RAF Wednesday night.

Although anti-aircraft fire was intense the Germans either were unable to send up interceptors in force or were unwilling to risk their diminishing fighter strength against the American fighter escort.

As London experienced another short alert last night, Air Minister Sir Archibald Sinclair gave the first official description of the new "secret plane" used by the Germans in recent attacks at London.

He said it was the Messerschmitt-410, a twin-engine fighter bomber, which carried a navigator to help the pilot locate his target in high speed sorties, and which, at their fastest speed, flash across the sky "like scalded cats."

YOUNG LIFER, FUGITIVE, IS SHOT TO DEATH

Chester, Pa., Nov. 6 (AP)—Victor Andreoli, lifer-term convict who escaped from Eastern penitentiary 11 days ago, was shot to death today in a gun battle with Pennsylvania State Police who surprised him at breakfast in a downtown restaurant.

The 27-year-old fugitive had boasted he would never be taken alive.

Andreoli, who killed a policeman in a holdup near Wilkes-Barre, Pa., six years ago, was dropped in his tracks by four bullets from the pistols of three state policemen who closed in on him as he huddled over his food at a lunch counter.

He himself fired two shots—and both missed.

During his escape he boasted: "The first cop that lays a hand on me dies."

Lifer's Gun Jams
As the bullet blasts let go suddenly, other patrons ducked under tables and hurried to cover in sheltered corners. Tables were overturned and customers gasped in fear.

The three policemen, who entered the restaurant—the Rainbow Grille—by coincidence and at first failed to recognize him—advanced toward him cautiously and in the beginning did not fire.

Andreoli turned, leaped to his feet, drew a pistol and blasted. Then his gun jammed. He made a dash for the door.

The police fired immediately. Four bullets struck him in the back as he tried to escape. He was dead on arrival at Chester hospital.

A widespread search for Andreoli turned from northern and central Pennsylvania to Chester yesterday after a former fellow prison inmate of the fugitive reported recognizing him on a street near the Pennsylvania railroad freight station.

Threatens Child
Andreoli escaped the penitentiary by hiding in the rear of an outgoing truck.

Several hours later, he turned up at the Philadelphia home of Anthony W. Cella, an acquaintance. Cella's wife and daughter, Angela, six, were in the house.

Andreoli held a knife against the child and threatened to kill her unless the mother gave him some clothes to replace his prison garb. She gave him one of her husband's suits. At about this time Cella came home from work.

Then, still threatening the child, Andreoli forced mother, daughter, and father into the family automobile and Cella drove several blocks while Andreoli changed his clothes. Then the fugitive stepped from the car at a neighborhood business intersection.

A Reading hotel manager later reported that he had spent the night in his hotel. That was the last definite trace of him until he was recognized here yesterday.

Andreoli was convicted of murder in the shooting of John Broske, a state trooper, in a night club on East End boulevard near Wilkes-Barre on August 14, 1937.

On St. Valentine's Day, 1940, he and nine other convicts were caught while digging a tunnel beneath their cell block in the direction of the penitentiary wall.

The fugitive's parents lived in Philadelphia.

Japan is preparing to risk much in trying to hold on to Bougainville, her last big base in the Solomons, and to menace New Britain which bars the open sea lanes to the Philippines.

Already Japan has lost a cruiser and four destroyers, as well as sustaining damage to two heavy cruisers and two destroyers, in a naval battle fought early Tuesday near the beachhead now rapidly being consolidated by U. S. Marines at Empress Augusta Bay on Bougainville's west-central coast.

Toll of 700 Planes
Later that same day, three more destroyers were sunk and two heavy cruisers damaged by Allied bombers at Rabaul.

The enemy naval reinforcements, which do not as yet include any battleships or aircraft carriers, have other gaps to fill at Rabaul. There since October 12 Allied bombers have sunk a total of seven destroyers and more than 12 good-sized cargo vessels, damaged the two heavy cruisers, a destroyer tender, a submarine tender and a submarine and wiped out or damaged more than 700 planes.

Both General MacArthur and Admiral Halsey have expressed confidence of ability to handle any eventuality in the northern Solomons showdown.

Twenty-nine Japanese bodies were found on Puruta Island which was occupied Tuesday.

A few prisoners have been taken on Bougainville itself but only minor patrol action is reported from there.

(This dispatch specified Tokokino Island and Cape Tokokino. Other dispatches have referred to Cape Tokokino just north of the bay on whose tip the first landing occurred Monday. It was not clear whether these are identical locations.)

American's Day Starts With Breakfast

American crystal never asks the time of day. You can set it out for breakfast, again for lunch, dinner, and all other times when food or drink is in order. It sparkles and glorifies any setting and is sturdily made to endure hard usage. Another virtue is its amazing low price. Still another, it is open stock. You can always match and add. So can one for whom you buy American as a gift.

After seven months of controversy and four paralyzing strikes which cost the nation more than 40,000,000 tons of coal this is the picture: UMW President John L. Lewis has a memorandum agreement with Fuels boss Harold Ickes; under it the soft coal miner who formerly received $7 a day will receive $8.50, agreeing to dig coal an hour longer, partly by halving his 30-minute lunch period. After his 40th hour underground he starts getting paid for travel time at time and a half. In a six-day week his increase is about $11.50, so that the average daily increase is closer to $2 than $1.50. His total week's earnings will be close to $57. Some may earn more and the average would exceed $60.

One Dissenter
Provisions covering anthracite miners were fully approved. They were granted 70 cents a day additional.

Only a few anti-climatic chapters of the 1943 coal drama appeared to remain: (1) the meeting of conditions which the WLB attached to its approval of the Ickes-Lewis agreement; (2) determination of new ceiling prices, and (3) restoration of the mines to their private owners.

The board voted 11 to 1 for approval, with public member Wayne L. Morse casting the lone dissenting vote. He denounced the policy of approving a contract "which appears to have been dictated at the point of the strike weapon."

Edward R. Burke, president of the Southern Coal Operators' association, commented:

"If the new contract really provides for one additional hour of productive work, then the extra pay can be justified."

But he added:

"While on paper, the board has adhered to the stabilization program, we think that no increased production will result from the contract. Maybe, if the miners are really encouraged to work, the contract may actually be effective."

MECHANICSBURG WHIPS MAROONS 32-6 IN FINAL

After putting up one of their best exhibitions of the season by holding Mechanicburg to a 7-0 score at half time, the Gettysburg high Maroons cracked in the third period and went down 32-6 before the Wildcats in the final game of the season here Friday evening. About 1,200 fans saw the contest.

The defeat was the seventh in a row for the Maroons this year and it is believed it is the first time in history that a Gettysburg eleven failed to win at least one game.

Coach Dry's lads gave the visitors a real scare in the first half by their determined play and in the first period had a first down on the three-yard line but could not score.

Hertzler received the opening kickoff and returned to his 30. Engle was forced to punt to Dorsey who was downed on Gettysburg's 35. Dorsey kicked deep into Mechanicburg loam but Engle returned the ball 25 yards to Gettysburg's 40. Engle and Spahr ripped off two straight first downs to reach the five and from there Spahr went through the line for a score. Rupp place-kicked the extra point.

Maroons Threaten
Dorsey, whose punting has been one of the highlights of the local team's play this year, put the Maroons in a scoring spot when he got off a 65-yard punt in the middle of the period to put the ball on Mechanicburg's 10. Engle's return punt hit on the 37 and bounded back to the 25. Dorsey circled left end and for 12 yards to make it a first down on the 14 and then went around right end for another first down on the three. Here Mechanicburg tightened and took the ball on downs on the six.

A series of sweeping end runs by Engle resulted in three straight first downs for the visitors to open the second period but the Dry-men braced on the 15 and Engle attempted a placement kick from the 25 but the boot was wide. Later in the period Kreiter recovered a Gettysburg fumble on the Maroons' 15 and Tonsel recovered a Mechanicburg fumble on the 10 to squish the threat.

Visitors Run Wild

Mechanicburg put the game on ice in the third period with a trio of touchdowns. After Mechanicburg had reached the 26 largely through a recovered fumble, Gettysburg took the ball on the 26. A pass to Thrush bounded off the receiver and Sanders nabbed the pigskin for a first down on the 38. The Wildcats braced and when Dorsey attempted to punt, the kick was blocked and Spahr gathered in the ball and ran 30 yards for a score. The placement kick was wide.

Engle intercepted a pass shortly afterwards to put the ball on Gettysburg's 28. Hertzler went around left end for a first down on the one and then Engle hit the line for a score. Rupp added the point on a placement.

Sparked by Engle's running, Mechanicburg moved from the Maroons' 44 to the 17 from where Hertzler went around left end for a tally. Epley blocked the kick for the point.

Timbers Scores

Coach Pury sent in a new team to open the third period and the Maroons quickly took advantage of their presence to score their first home touchdown of the season. On an exchange of punts Dorsey was downed on Mechanicburg's 37. Timbers and Dorsey picked up a first down on the 26. Timbers got four yards around left end and then on a fake plunge Timbers emerged from the left side of the line and scampered the remaining distance for a score. Hess' boot for the point was wide.

The Mechanicburg varsity came back into the game and marched 67 yards for its fifth and final score with Spahr tallying from the three. Sperry blocked Rupp's placement.

Mechanicburg piled up 14 first downs while Gettysburg made six. The Maroons completed six of 17 passes with one being intercepted. Mechanicburg made good on two of four aerial tries.

The running of Engle and Hertzler featured for the visitors. The former has received his notification to report to the Coast Guard in about two weeks and will play his final game against Chambersburg.

Mauriello Captures Decision From Savold

New York, Nov. 6 (AP)—It is apparent, that Lee Savold ought to change his brand of gas when taking on Tami Mauriello, because he's not getting nearly enough mileage out of the brand he uses now.

For the second time in a year the transplanted Iowan who now does his fighting out of Paterson, New Jersey, floored the Bronx beller in Madison Square Garden last night, only to run out of gas down the stretch and lose a decision in ten rounds.

Just as in their first fight, Lee went right out in front with the opening gong this time, but starting with the sixth round he began to falter and Tami, waltzed in with the last five rounds in order, for the entertainment of a crowd of 14,987, who welcomed boxing back to the Garden for the first time in a month. The gross gate was $47,128.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, Nov. 6 (AP) — It's unusual to turn to a hockey man for an explanation of this season's football attendance, but in the dripping Yale bowl last week, Murray Murdoch, the old "Iron Man" of the New York Rangers and now Yale hockey coach, made a comment that applies well to football. "It's easy to educate the fans up to better performances," said Murdoch, "but it's hard to educate them down." That day a scant 5,000 spectators turned out for the Yale-Dartmouth game and 2,700 watched Princeton play Brown—and in spite of the teams' records, the games were good. The same afternoon some 150,000 fans saw the Notre Dame-Navy and Army-Penn tussles and today almost as many will watch Notre Dame vs. Army and Penn vs. Navy. Maybe you still could call those four institutions of higher education.

OLD WESTY PAGE

The West Point statistical department, surveying the list of about 5,000 cadets who won varsity football letters from 1891 to 1942, points out that two now are generals, two lieutenant generals, 20 major generals, 38 brigadier generals, 98 colonels, 105 lieutenant colonels, 64 majors, 21 captains, 46 first lieutenants and six second lieutenants. Seven have been killed in action, two are missing and three are prisoners of Japan. Only 29 are in civil life.

ONE-MINUTE SPORTS PAGE

Connecticut sports scribes agree that Levi Jackson, 17-year-old Hillhouse high back in New Haven, is better right now than any of Yale's ball toters. Really, it's a little more than faint praise. In last week's Iowa State-Oklahoma game, the Sooners used the huddle and ran 48 plays while the Cyclones called the old fashioned way and ran 81—but Oklahoma won, 21-7. Another last word on the Dodger dislikes: Branch Rickey says, "There couldn't be anybody that I could be more unwilling to dispose of than Mickey Owen." Leo Houck, Penn State's boxing coach who lost out in his campaign for Lancaster county commissioner, can blame himself. Every time his Penn State friends would ask for a campaign cigar, Leo would retort: "Nothing doing; those kind of votes go up in smoke."

A LITTLE LEARNING

When the Billings (Mont.) high school Braves entered their dressing room in Butte's high school stadium before a recent game, they examined with considerable interest the plays diagrammed on the blackboard. They had been assigned the room used for Coach Swede Dahlberg's chalk talks. A pair of Butte players sauntered in and invited: "Go ahead and look 'em over, but you won't get much good out of them in an hour. We haven't learned them in two years." An hour later the score was Billings, 8; Butte, 6.

SERVIC DEPT.

Lt. Jimmy O'Brien, coach of the Kearns (Utah) Army Air Base team, has to be careful about giving "fight" talks when Staff Sgt. Joe Gallant is around. Gallant, former Boston U. halfback, has seen combat duty in the South Pacific besides playing football for the 35th Infantry and Honolulu Bears in Hawaii. Lt. Frank Kimbrough, pilot of the North Carolina Pre-Flight Cloudbusters, is moaning because seven of his regulars completed their training just before today's Wake Forest game. But he still has Cadet Cecil Hare, the ex-Washington Redskins. Last spring Ken Alyta, of the Waterbury, Connecticut Republican, picked the Kentucky Derby finish 1-2-3-4 with out seeing the gee-gees. Now Pvt. Alyta has been sent to Fort Knox, Kentucky, and if he stays, there long enough he'll likely get a chance to see 'em.

MEET MOUNTAINEERS

Bethlehem, Pa., Nov. 6 (AP)—Making their first home appearance of the season, Lehigh's gridders clash with West Virginia today before an expected crowd of 3,500. The game will not start until 3:15 p. m. in order to permit war workers to attend.

CADETS - IRISH, PENN - MIDDIES TOP GRID TILTS

New York, Nov. 6 (AP)—The football scales are tipped heavily toward the East today with Notre Dame's meeting with Army and Navy's struggle with Pennsylvania virtually obliterating the remainder of the Eastern program and overshadowing the entire national card.

Some 75,000 spectators have purchased tickets for the Irish-Cadet affair in New York city's Yankee Stadium with the hopes of finding out for themselves just how good Notre Dame is minus the transferred Angelo Bertelli.

"Hide" Other Games

Only because Franklin Field can accommodate only 73,000 will the crowd be smaller at Philadelphia where a Penn team that tied Army a week ago takes on the Middies.

The two games "hide" such Eastern titles as Brown-Yale, Columbia-Dartmouth, Penn State-Cornell and Holy Cross-Temple. In addition, they shade games involving Louisiana State-Georgia Tech, Northwestern-Wisconsin, Purdue-Minnesota, Colorado-Utah, Texas A and M-Southern Methodist and Southern California-San Diego Naval Training Station.

The Midwest also has earmarked a part of its interest for the outcomes of the Ohio State-Pittsburgh and Illinois-Iowa struggles. All four teams are made up entirely of civilians, as is the Indiana outfit which plays Michigan.

Some Southwest attention will be diverted to the Texas Tech-Texas Christian meeting and also to the Oklahoma A and M-Tulsa affair.

Today Down South

Down South the North Carolina-Carolina feud is next behind the Louisiana State-Georgia Tech battle but shares billing with Duke-North Carolina State, Wake Forest-North Carolina Pre-Flight and the Memphis contest between Southwestern Louisiana Institute and Arkansas A and M—a pair of small colleges with unbeaten top-flight football teams.

Missouri and Oklahoma, the two contenders for the Big Six Conference title, both are busy, the Tigers invading Iowa State and the Sooners entering Kansas.

The efforts of the Southern California Trojans to remain unbeaten, untied and unscored upon against San Diego Naval Training Station fight for Coast attention against the onslaughts of the California-San Francisco and UCLA-Dei Monte Pre Flight struggles.

CLAIRTON HIGH STREAK HALTED

Pittsburgh, Nov. 6 (AP)—History repeated itself last night when Clairton High's Bears were toppled from the ranks of unbeaten and untied WPIAL Class AA contenders by Duquesne, 14 to 9, before a crowd of 9,000 at Duquesne.

It was in 1930 that the Dukes also spilled the Championship-Bound Bears in another surprise upset, 7 to 0.

Clairton had a 9 to 7 lead and was only 51 seconds from a possible championship last night when the hard-riding Dukes took to the air. Carl Genito faded from the Clairton 30 to the 45, and arched a high pass to Tommy Haley, substitute end, who was waiting in the end zone—and that was the game.

Snap Winning Streak

The defeat snapped Clairton's string of 21 victories stretching back to November, 1941. It was the third time Duquesne has beaten Clairton in the 15-game series between the two schools.

The only other undefeated class AA team, Brownsville, chalked up its ninth victory of the year with a smashing 49-20 victory over Uniontown.

FRESHMAN IN BACKFIELD FOR IRISH TODAY

By HAROLD CLAASSEN

New York, Nov. 6 (AP)—A makeshift backfield made up of two regulars, one substitute and an 18-year-old freshman who has played only five minutes of college football will operate behind the Notre Dame line today in the annual clash with Army's cadets.

Even before the unbeaten Notre Dame forces arrived today after an all-night ride from South Bend it was announced that Bob Kelly, 18-year-old product of Chicago, would replace the ailing Julie Rykovich at right halfback.

Rykovich, probably the most versatile of Notre Dame's backfield operatives, missed all the Irish practices this week because of a stomach ailment. He re-joined his mates yesterday morning for the trip here but will not start.

Debut Against Navy

Kelly, who turned down a West Point appointment in hopes he might get to play for Notre Dame some day, became eligible at the South Bend institution last week and made a brief appearance in the Navy struggle.

His debut as a starter comes at the same time that Johnny Lujack takes over the quarterback duties surrendered by Angelo Bertelli when the latter was transferred to the Paris Island Marine camp.

Kelly and Lujack will team with fullback James Mello and left halfback Creighton Miller, only civilian on the team, in the first team backfield.

While Notre Dame spent the night traveling to its thirty-first meeting with Army, the cadets slept at the Knollwood Country club near New York city after romping through a light workout on the Yankee stadium sod last yesterday.

75,000 Tickets Sold

Glenn Davis, sensational plebe back for the tied but unbeaten cadets held down the first team fullback slot while Doug Kenna, injured ball carrier whom Coach Earl Blaik rates as the best back he ever coached, was on the second team. Kenna has been idle most of the year because of an injured knee.

Everyone of the 75,000 tickets to the game has been sold for more than two weeks.

The Army cadets corps marches onto the field at 1:10 p. m., and will be in the stands as the Army strives for its first victory since 1931 over one of its traditional foes.

LAUD HUNTERS FOR SHARING SHELL SUPPLY

Harrisburg, Nov. 6 (AP) — The Game Commission said today that Pennsylvania hunters have earned the title of sportsmen by generously sharing with others the limited supply of shotgun shells available.

In a statement which expressed the hope that ammunition manufacturers "would be able to get more shells to local dealers as the small game season progresses," the commission said:

"Strange to say, in a good many instances those unable to obtain ammunition held the Game Commission responsible, whereas the truth is that the commission, along with other state game departments, U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service officials, and representatives of the WPB, as far back as last December was doing everything possible to expedite the production of such quantity as the government could release for civilian use without interfering with the war."

Pennsylvania was allotted 825,000 center-fire rifle cartridges and about 6,000,000 shotgun shells by federal authorities.

"There is every reason to hope that an adequate supply of center-fire rifle cartridges will be available for the big game hunters," the commission said, adding it was "optimistic about later deliveries of shotgun shells."

The commission reported four lives have been lost in hunting accidents since the small game season opened October 30.

MIDDIES READY FOR PENN TILT; AERIAL BATTLE

Philadelphia, Nov. 6 (AP)—The U. S. Naval Academy took to the water to get to Philadelphia today, but it's almost a sure bet that a sellout crowd of 73,000 will see Navy depend greatly on its air arm. Hal Hamberg, in an attempt to scuttle Pennsylvania's unconquered grid machine.

The Middle "task force," 776 strong, sailed from Annapolis during the night fully aware that hope for a victory on Franklin Field today rests largely on the 150-pound halfback whose touchdown heave to Ben Martin upset Penn, 7 to 0, last year.

Munger Moaning

Meanwhile, Penn's Coach George Munger continued to give the impression that he would find it difficult to field 11 gridders who would not smelt of ether from having spent a week in the university infirmary.

However, both Quaker regulars who have been ailing all week, Right End Frank Kane and Left Tackle Lester Zetty, participated in light workouts yesterday and it appeared both will see considerable action even though they don't make the starting lineup. A shoulder injury has bothered Kane while Zetty had a cold.

Captain John E. (Billic) Whelchel, Navy's coach has reported the Middle squad in the best shape in recent weeks. Both Bobby Jenkins, night and were expecting greater profits today.

champions, and Jim Pettit, a 9.6

sprinter, have recovered from injuries that prevented them from playing against Notre Dame.

Navy, despite the Irish defeat, has been installed an 8 to 5 favorite with most of the experts expecting Penn to catch the Middies on the rebound. It also is calculated that the Quakers will not reach the peak they did last week in gaining a 13-13 tie with Army.

Officially, the last ticket for the game was sold Thursday afternoon when the university ticket office closed its window, but scalpers were doing a land-office business last night and were expecting greater profits today.

Harmon Serious About Religion

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 6 (AP)—Tom Harmon, Michigan's counterpart of football immortal Red Grange was a serious-minded Army pilot in the battle-filled skies over China where he has been reported missing since Oct. 30.

As his family and friends hoped and prayed for his second deliverance from mishap in the air, bits of his religious fervor were gleaned from letters received recently from the former All-America halfback.

Fighter Pilot Harmon wrote the Rev. F. Frank McPhillips, chaplain of St. Mary's Catholic student chapel, that he had flown 500 miles to attend a Sunday midnight mass in China "because there was no church near our base."

"If ever a man says he has no fear in combat, he's a liar," wrote the hero of scores of football battles. "But that one evening in church gave me more comfort, strength and confidence than I've yet experienced in China."

PRO-GRIDDERS IN BIG TILTS

By TED MEIER

New York, Nov. 6 (AP)—Coach Earl "Greasy" Neale, of the Phil-Pitt Eagles celebrates his 52nd birthday today and his team of professional footballers plan to give him a real present tomorrow by whipping Sammy Baugh and his championship Washington Redskins eleven.

The game, which probably will be witnessed by some 25,000 at Shibe Park in Philadelphia, shares top interest in tomorrow's National football league schedule with the Green Bay-Chicago Bears clash at Chicago where a crowd of 45,000 is expected.

Both contests are a "must" for the Eagles and the Packers. A loss will eliminate them from the Eastern and Western division races respectively.

Although the Eagles always have given the Redskins trouble at Shibe Park, undefeated and untied Washington is favored to win its fifth straight. Earl has been instructing his boys all week on a special defense to stop Baugh's passes, but still Baugh, who set a record last week by throwing six touchdown passes against Brooklyn, figures to again pace his club to victory.

Riding with Russell

Reg. U. S. Pat. Off. by FREDERICK C. RUSSELL, Member S. A. E.

One way of being helped out of a big hole is to be towed out of a vehicular tunnel.

Hard steering often is merely due to the steering gear itself being loose where it bolts to the frame. An easy way to tell is to watch the gear housing when the hood is lifted and you have someone tug at the wheel. A loose housing will then move up and down very slightly, but noticeably. Cramping is due simply to movement of the housing from its normal position.

Replace That Cartridge

"Is there any risk in not replacing an oil filter when it has loaded up?" is a question I am often asked. There seems to be an idea that a clogged filter cartridge then starts to pass dirt and abrasive back into the oiling system, with serious consequences so far as the engine's oiling system is concerned. In general this is not the case at all, since a filter is supposed to cease passing oil when it clogs. Oil then circulates the normal way without benefit of filtration. Recently a series of filter cartridges broke down and passed their material back into the oil system. This was so serious the car maker instructed all of its official service stations to remove the filters from cars as quickly as possible. But this was exceptional. In general however, it is well to replace filters when they fill up, otherwise the engine ceases to enjoy the benefits of filtration. In some cases the water in the bottom of the filter has rusted the shell, causing sudden loss of oil.

Believe it or let it pass with the scenery, one of your post-war motoring problems will be birds. Your car of tomorrow is to be capable of taking to the air, and as soon as this happens you will face the pilot's problem of trying to protect the windshield against collision with fowl of the air. Also closely related will be the problem of fogging and icing of the glass, a situation which you already know on a smaller scale. Can these problems be overcome? And, if so, how?

That is a question now faced by the aviation industry as consideration is given to the possibilities in double pane windshields, heated and air-conditioned. They afford complete freedom from the ice menace, and icing of the glass, a situation panes in protecting against complete fracture when colliding with birds.

but visibility in fair weather is not as good due to greatly increased reflections.

Mechanic Joe Speaking

"Anyone who would take the trouble to look over some of the cars that are brought in here for service couldn't escape the conclusion that a heap of trouble is the result of owners overdoing things. I've just had to pull down a fan and replace its bearing because the owner tightened the belt too much, and there's a clutch job that cost one of your neighbors a lot of coin just because he cut down on the gas mixture until the car jerked every time it started off.

"There are plenty of cases of cramped wheel bearings and overtight valve tappets. Then there is over-oiling. I have a generator commutator to clean up this morning, and after lunch I'm tackling a starter drive which someone gummed up by squirting oil into it. Looks to me as if it's safer to be a bit shy with elbow grease than too liberal. At least an owner should go easy until he is sure of his ground."

On downhill it is always well to glance at the speedometer to watch the rate of acceleration change, if any. If, for instance, the car jumps from 30 to 40 miles per hour indications are that the grade is steeper than anticipated. Speed pickup is particularly likely to be unnoticed if you are driving downhill at night over an unfamiliar road, but the speedometer is always a good guide. You'll also find this to be true in cases where lowered engine efficiency cuts its compression braking effectiveness. In other words, your most familiar hill may turn out to be "steeper" than usual, if the engine doesn't brake as well.

All In The Riding

When B. N. J. complained twice of having the carburetor loosen where it bolts to the intake manifold I decided to check into the thing. This wasn't just the usual loosening, and when I lifted the hood of his car I discovered why. Because the engine was idling much too slowly it rocked violently in its flexible base. As a result of this the heavy air cleaner on top of the carburetor caused the latter to shake itself loose.

The L-head engine, more popularly known as the valve-in-head engine, has several important advantages, but it is important to consider its disadvantages—a situation that is common to all designs and which, if properly understood, always leads to better appreciation. Where the valves are in the head above the cylinders there are no pockets in which gas can collect and do less work. There is more efficient distribution of the gas mixture, the arrangement thereby making for maximum power. On the debit side we find greater difficulty colling the valves when they are mounted in cages, and the need for more valve gear including rocker arms. This means a noisier engine when wear develops.

Only Ten Per Cent

When you consider that 40 per cent of the energy in every gallon of gasoline you buy for your car is wasted through the exhaust gases, and another 40 per cent wasted through the cooling system, you cannot escape the importance of lubrication. Ten per cent of the remaining power in the gas is lost through unavoidable friction, but that percentage can easily increase if any part of the engine or chassis lacks for oil or grease, or if any parts are incorrectly adjusted. We have a margin of only about 10 per cent actual benefit from the fuel's energy so it is imperative that we make every effort to fight friction. Much may be lost through overtight wheel bearings, slipping clutch or dragging brakes, so don't confine your efforts to lubrication alone. Even need for front wheel alignment must be considered, for out-of-line wheels cause tire drag.

Maybe you have been observing enough to notice it but your car will usually climb a curving hill better than one that is straight. There's no mystery about it. When you foot from the accelerator. This encourages oil to suck up past the pistons, lubricating the cylinder walls at a time when friction is reaching serious proportions. On the straight hill you keep your foot on the accelerator without this pause.

So you've guessed it? Sure, take your foot from the accelerator abruptly and momentarily several slow down for curves you lift your

TROOPS QUELL JAP DISORDER IN WAR CAMP

Tule Lake, Calif., Nov. 5 (AP)—Tanks, armored cars, machineguns and fixed bayonets ruled the 16,000 Tule Lake Japanese with a firm hand today in the wake of America's first serious internment camp uprising of the war.

This huge segregation center for those proved disloyal to the United States, or suspected of being so, came under full Army control yesterday after another outbreak of violence in which 20 rebellious Japanese and at least one civilian were injured.

The War Relocation Authority in desperation had asked military aid. Army troops in battle dress moved en masse into the camp with fixed bayonets and rounded up 500 Japanese, who were questioned while holding their hands clasped over their heads.

Use Tear Gas

The Japanese, who on Monday held an impromptu three-hour mass meeting at the Administration building while keeping 75 government employees virtual prisoners inside, showed no inclination to argue as soldiers patrolled the camp and light tanks took up positions with guns pointing toward the living area.

The only show of organized disobedience was broken up by tear gas. Witnesses said that late yesterday when a group of Japanese estimated variously at 250 to 1,000 formed apparently for a conference, soldiers effectively used tear gas to disperse them.

Twenty armored cars complete with heavy machineguns moved through the camp's dirt roads. Jeeps scurried about, mounted machineguns on the ready. Some soldiers carried Tommy guns; others made up light machinegun units.

It was a precisely-executed maneuver, and when it was over the Army announced succinctly, "quiet has been restored."

Rochester, Pa., Nov. 5 (AP)—Selective Service Board No. 3 has started to reclassify workers on strike at the National Supply Company's Spang-Chalfant Plant Ambridge, the board chairman, the Rev. M. S. Ashton, said Friday. Strikers with 2-B ratings are being made 1-A.

WIVES WORKING DOES NOT HURT DRAFT STATUS

Harrisburg, Nov. 6 (AP)—Pennsylvania employment officials today predicted increased job applications by women would follow disclosure by Selective Service headquarters that employment of dependents does not affect registrant's draft status.

A statement by Selective Service officials said "wives may accept employment without jeopardizing any deferred classification which their husbands may have." H. Raymond Mason, State director of the U. S. Employment Service, said "we expect the regulation to assist us in recruiting housewives and other women for war-useful jobs."

Mason said some 57,000 war jobs for women will be opened throughout the state in the next few months and twice that number in all types of industry.

The Selective Service announcement pointed out that dependency as a basis for deferment has been eliminated—except in the case of extreme hardship—and stated the primary question is not whether the wife is working but whether she is able to work and whether work is available.

Local draft boards throughout Pennsylvania are now re-classifying all men previously put in 3-A for dependency. It is reported that the men are being placed in 3-D, the new dependency-deferred classification.

Favor Buckeyes Over Pittsburgh

Pittsburgh, Nov. 6 (AP)—Ohio State was regarded a two touchdown favorite over Pitt today in a battle between two all-civilian squads before an expected 30,000 spectators.

Both the Buckeye and Panther elevens have improved greatly over their early season form and the eighth game in the series is expected to be a thriller. The Panthers are riding on a two game winning streak while Ohio State has lost five of its six games.

Soldiers Swamp Paper Calling For Scores

London, Nov. 6 (AP)—Even in England there are usually hundreds of telephone calls for American football scores and the Stars and Stripes, official Army newspaper, has been forced to say "Uncle."

The newspaper has been so swamped by calls in the past few weeks that it announced that hereafter no scores would be given over the telephone. Soldiers will just have to wait until Monday's paper comes out.

Four Navy Fliers Accidentally Killed

Greensburg, Pa., Nov. 6 (AP)—Four Navy fliers were killed accidentally when their plane crashed into a mountainside October 30 near Stahlstown, a coroner's jury found yesterday.

The jury made no recommendations.

Lieut. Earl E. Caulkins, an experienced pilot, apparently lost the radio beam and crashed while trying to find it, Navy officials said previously.

Other victims were Capt. Elmer J. Wood, 27, of the Marines, and Flying Cadets Thomas J. Greene, 19, Evansville, Wisconsin, and Robert A. Gurley, 19, Charlottesville, Virginia.

OVERCOME BY FUMES

Pittsburgh, Nov. 6 (AP)—Mrs. Mary Funk, 24, was overcome by carbon monoxide fumes and died yesterday at her home, while her eight-month-old baby played in a nearby crib, apparently unaffected by the fumes. The husband, Clarence, 26, found Mrs. Funk dead when he returned from work at a war plant.

Q. Since taking my car out of dead storage I have been plagued with valve springs breaking. What can I do about it? G. V. C.

A. Keep installing new ones. There is no telling how long an old one will last. During dead storage some of the valve springs are held under compression, a fact that weakens them. It could have been avoided had you cranked over the engine to a new position once a week.

Q. Why isn't it possible to mix various kinds of anti-freeze? Is the warning against "no mixing" just a selling job on the part of companies that want us to continue using their products? B. N. McK.

A. Lots of mixtures are possible, and some won't even harm the cooling system. But how are you going to tell how well you have protected the cooling system when hydrometers are designed to test the strength of only one kind of anti-freeze at a time?

Q. What is the correct clearance for piston ring gaps or joints? Wm. B. L.

A. There is no set figure, for the gap should vary in accordance with ring diameter. For a ring four inches in diameter usually a gap of .015 inch is sufficient. Some service men make the gap as wide as one-eighth inch just as a precaution against trouble should the rings expand too much.

Q. When the engine of my car gets well warmed up it starts to skip. I have checked the valve tappets and find that they have adequate clearance. I don't believe the engine heats enough to disturb carburetion. Have you a suggestion? F. M.

A. I would have the ignition coil tested. It may break down when heated.

Mr. Russell will answer questions regarding the safe care and operation of your car. Just address him care of The Gettysburg Times and enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope for personal reply.

RETURN YOUTHS TO BRONX FOR MURDER CHARGE

New York Nov. 6 (AP)—Leonard (Buddy) Marcus, 15, was back in the Bronx today, booked on a homicide charge in the strangulation death of his 75-year-old step-grandmother, Mrs. Jennie Flicker, Wednesday.

He was returned here last night from Wayne, Pennsylvania, and immediately booked.

Brought back with young Marcus was Melvin Rudnitsky, 17, a fellow student at Christopher Columbus high school. Rudnitsky also was booked on a homicide charge although he was not present when Mrs. Flicker was killed.

Sylvester Ryan, chief assistant district attorney of the Bronx, said the Marcus boy readily admitted that when his step-grandmother surprised him while he was taking $65 from a dresser drawer he struck her with a lamp and choked her with a pillow case.

Ryan quoted the youth as saying that when Mrs. Flicker's mouth opened and her false teeth fell out he picked her up and shoved her in a closet.

Marcus told police the $65 belonged to him and that his father had been holding it for him. He said he wanted the money because he and Rudnitsky planned a trip to California.

Ryan quoted the Marcus boy as saying he ransacked the room to give the appearance of a burglary and afterwards met Rudnitsky and had him withdraw $50 from a bank account before they started on their trip.

Marcus told police he did not know his step-grandmother was dead—"I just thought she was unconscious."

STEEL UNION OUT TO BREAK WAGE FORMULA

Philadelphia, Nov. 5 (AP)—The United Steelworkers of America (CIO), which won the first industry-wide wage increase under the national wage stabilization program, was reported ready today for an attempt to crack the "Little Steel" formula it helped establish.

While delegates to the CIO national convention scattered to their homes, President Philip Murray, who also heads the steelworkers' union, remained behind to take part in a meeting of the steelworkers' executive committee Monday.

On record as denouncing administration of the wage stabilization program as "a national hodge podge," Murray said he wouldn't care to comment "before Monday" on reports that new wage demands would be presented.

Seek New Increase

Other convention sources, however, went so far as to predict that the steelworkers, whose wage increase in July, 1942, established a national standard, would seek a flat increase of 15 cents an hour, with living costs and the coal mine wage raise as main arguments.

The steelworkers sought a $1 a day raise in 1942 for 180,000 employees of Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet and Tube, Inland and Republic Steel companies.

It was in deciding that case that the War Labor Board evolved what became known as the "Little Steel" formula—a ceiling 15 per cent above levels of January 1, 1941, to provide "an end to the tragic race between wages and prices."

And that formula—which gave the steel workers an additional 44 cents an hour—has been used by WLB as a yardstick for wage increase applications since then.

No Accord

Murray, however, told the CIO convention in accepting a fourth term as its president yesterday that "there has been no accord in the administration concerning wage stabilization."

"This has been evidenced," he declared, "by pronouncements made by members of the cabinet and by statements attributed to various agencies of the federal government."

Blaming Congress for "opposing the President" in stabilization attempts, Murray said administering "a so-called national wage stabilization policy by the federal government has been a national hodge-podge."

The maximum prison sentence is 50 years.

Purvis received the verdict without display of emotion here last night when the jury found him guilty after deliberating three hours and 45 minutes.

Judge Meaney was not present to receive the verdict.

The government charged Purvis received from Manuel Lopes, a counter espionage agent, a letter from Gestapo agents in Lisbon, Portugal, containing 16 questions concerning movements of United States troops, ships and supplies prior to the Allied invasion of North Africa.

Says Pennsylvania A Roosevelt State

Harrisburg, Nov. 6 (AP)—Democratic leaders saw a bright side to Tuesday's election results despite Republican victories as Auditor General F. Clair Ross asserted the commonwealth "is still a Roosevelt state" and State Democratic Chairman David L. Lawrence calling his party's triumphs in Allegheny county "immensely gratifying."

Governor Martin had said GOP successes indicated a Republican victory in the 1944 presidential race but Ross, whom Martin defeated for the governorship last year, declared "Roosevelt was not an issue in this campaign and neither were his policies—the result in Pennsylvania will be entirely different in 1944."

Lawrence said he was cheered by Allegheny results because every Democratic county and city official running for re-election won by majorities far greater than those they received four years ago. The election results show very definitely that good public administration is the best brand of politics.

To Show Film On Farm Labor Shortage

"The difficulty in finding experienced farm help is not confined to this locality," says John C. Hartman, local Sinclair agent. "The shortage in farm labor is a national problem," he points out, "which is engaging the serious attention of agricultural authorities everywhere."

In an attempt to assist in solving that problem, Mr. Hartman has joined with the Sinclair Refining company and other Sinclair agents in a nation-wide Farm Front Fighters program for training help to be useful on the farm.

As the highlight of his program here, Mr. Hartman announces a Farm Front Fighters meeting at the Gettysburg high school on November 12. The feature of the meeting will be a motion picture which shows how one farmer solved the labor shortage on his own farm.

The agriculture department at the high school is cooperating in the Farm Front Fighters program.

DEFENSE CORPS CONTINUATION URGED BY ADAMS

Harrisburg, Nov. 6 (AP)—Continuation of Pennsylvania's vast civilian defense organization as a post-war unit was advocated today by Col. Lynn G. Adams, chief of Protective Services for the State Defense Council.

"We hear statements that never again can the United States afford to be unprepared in the face of world menace," declared Colonel Adams. "Continuation of civilian defense in one form or another is just as important as an Army and Navy."

The volunteer forces "have come through with a bang wherever disaster threatened" in the current war period, Adams declared.

He referred to the work done by 7,500 air raid wardens, auxiliary police, rescue squads and others in the wreck of the Congressional Limited passenger train in Philadelphia on Labor Day; the Broad Street station fire in the same city less than a week later and the disastrous explosion in Easton late last month.

He said the defense corps also has served where floods caused damage in many parts of the state; at Erie where volunteers were needed to rush factory employees, suffering from poison, to a hospital; in Allegheny county in a mine disaster, and in Bethlehem following a train wreck.

14,309 Tried For Major Offenses

Washington, Nov. 6 (AP)—The U. S. Department of Commerce reports that out of 14,309 persons tried for major offenses in Pennsylvania during 1942, 9,895, or 69.2 per cent were convicted and sentenced.

The department's Bureau of Census said that reports from Pennsylvania's department of welfare showed that among the defendants convicted and sentenced 2,734 or 27.6 per cent, were placed on probation or given a suspended sentence; 1,886 or 1.7 per cent were sent to state prison or reformatory; and 4,046 or 40.9 per cent were sentenced to a local jail or workhouse.

Major offenses per 100,000 of the population decreased from 249.1 in 1938 to 147.3 in 1942, and the rate for defendants convicted of major offenses also decreased from 185.6 in 1938 to 101.8 in 1942.

OVER - SUPPLY OF BUTTER IS DUE TO RATION

Pittsburgh, Nov. 6 (AP)—A serious over-supply of butter threatens as a result of the 16-ration-point-per-pound valuation placed on it by the OPA. O. A. Hettler, general manager of the Fairmont Creamery company, declared today.

Hettler said that was true despite the fact butter production is about 18 per cent lower than a year ago and asserted that consumer buying in the Pittsburgh district had dropped appreciably since the OPA order went into effect more than a month ago.

He said: "We have seen butter backing up in retail outlets the last two weeks. We think the chief cause is the 16-point ration value. It's too high to be in line with supplies."

Serious Situation
Hettler predicted wholesalers' warehouses would be over-supplied within a fortnight and added that the situation would become serious within six weeks, unless a change for the better developed.

Some stores continue to handle a normal supply, he said, but most retail outlets, already overstocked, are cutting weekly purchases from wholesalers. He added that hotels and restaurants, normally good butter buyers, had been cutting purchases heavily.

"They simply haven't got the points to buy at high ration values," Hettler stated.

Parker Robbins, a butter wholesaler, said increasing purchases of margarine, with a 6-point ration value, had contributed to the decline in butter sales.

QUEZON LIKELY TO BE RETAINED

Washington, Nov. 6 (AP)—Majority leader Barkley (Ky) predicted today speedy senate passage of a resolution to keep President Manuel Quezon at the head of the Philippine government until the U. S. restores civilian authority to the islands.

Asserting he knew of no opposition to the proposal, introduced yesterday by Chairman Tydings (D-Md) of the Insular Affairs Committee, Barkley said it probably could be adopted at next Tuesday's session.

The Philippine constitution prohibits one man from holding the presidency for more than eight years. While Quezon's present term won't expire until 1945, he will complete eight successive years in office Nov. 14, and in the absence of legislative action, would be unqualified to finish his term.

Sergio Osmena, the vice president, who would take over on Nov. 15, joined with Quezon and the six other members of the Philippine war cabinet, maintaining the island's government-in-exile here, in recommending the resolution.

G-GIRL

By LYDIA GRAY SHAW

Chapter 21

There was nothing military about Hathaway. He was wearing a badly mussed seersucker suit, and he looked unhappy in that. He accepted the report reluctantly. "I suppose I'll have to sit up all night with this," he said bitterly, and tossed the neatly typed sheets on to a desk heaped high with papers.

For all his grumbling, Hathaway was good. Langhorne had told Sally that, and Georgia Hammond confirmed it now. Sally stopped to talk with her on the way out of the office. "I've got another cause now," she told Sally. "Hathaway's always kidding me about my social work. Have you been over to the War Workers' Clubhouse?"

Sally didn't know there was such a place. Georgia threw up her hands. "There, you see. I told the girls we could use plenty of publicity, and nobody will get after the papers. It's right around the corner from your diggings, too. Don't you live near Dupont Circle? I thought you did. Well, a bunch of the wives of the town's big shots got together, and decided the lonesome government girls needed a recreation spot, to take dates to, but mostly to go to free of charge when they didn't have dates, and didn't relish spending the evening kicking around a hot little hall bedroom."

"So Evelyn Walsh McLean—you know?—said they could use the stable of her mansion on Massachusetts avenue, if they wanted to do it over themselves. Somehow I got sucked in on the renovating committee, and boy, have I worked. I think I've spent at least 48 hours on a step-ladder painting that darned place. But it's swell now. We christened it last night, and there were nearly 400 people there. These philanthropists having something. Where are you going now?"

That was a question Sally had been trying not to face. She was afraid Ted might try to get in touch with her at her house, and she didn't want to talk with him till she made up her mind what to say. All she knew was she didn't want to see him again. It would be too painful. She'd probably go to pieces and weep in his arms, and they'd be no place all over again. The best thing to do was to get it over with as quickly as possible.

Georgia went on. "If you haven't anything to do, come on up with me now, and look the place over." So Sally went along. They turned into the driveway alongside Mrs. McLean's home and came out into a square courtyard, paved with bumpy cobblestones.

The place was incredible. It was furnished with Moorish tapestries and Louis XIV chairs and heavy oak tables, all magnificent, all elegant. Georgia told Sally privately that the stable had been jammed to the rafters with quantities of furniture like the pieces in the clubhouse.

Sally sat down cautiously on the edge of a broad couch, but relaxed when she saw a girl curled up reading at the other end, uninhibited by the elegant furnishings. Georgia whistled softly. "Didn't gia, who seemed to have a finger in everything, came around with a questionnaire. From the impressive list of activities listed on it, the club evidently hoped to meet the recreational needs of every type of government worker.

"We probably won't get around to all this for a while," Georgia explained. "But we'd like to know what people want. Do they want to sing, or dance, or play ping-pong, or learn Spanish or what? So tell us all. Here."

Sally filled her questionnaire carefully, trying not to remember that Ted had taken care of all the social life she wanted to have these past weeks. Then she started on a tour of the room. Georgia had told her to take a look at the kitchen, which didn't exist in the days before the government girls descended on the place. She pushed open a door, and confronted a white-haired woman with rolled-up sleeves, busily washing a pile of dishes. She said, "Hello," to Sally without surprise.

Sally watched her grappling with the enormous stack of dishes, then said, "Can I help you?" The dishwasher seemed relieved. "If you would dry them. . . . This is our newest present. Isn't it grand?"

Sally liked the energy and enthusiasm of this attractive woman. She wasn't old enough to be her mother, in spite of her white hair, but there was something about her that reminded Sally of her own mother back home in River Edge.

The kitchen was cheerful, with cabinets painted bright blue, and the walls gay with cut-out pictures of carrots and tomatoes and apples. As Sally talked with this friendly woman about her job, her home town and family, she was conscious her nerves, which had been stretched as taut as a telephone cable, had suddenly relaxed. After the emotional strain of the day, after the excitement of the weeks she had known Ted, it was pleasant to do something as commonplace as drying dishes. Sally had been living at stratospheric heights for so long it was a relief to be down on the ground again with the rest of the world.

The door was pushed open and two more women came into the kitchen. The dishwasher introduced them, and they smiled at Sally. "I see Amy put you right to work," one of them said. "Kitchen police duty is my specialty," Sally replied. If these women were typical of the clubhouse chaperones, they were wonderful. She wondered fleetingly who they were.

Georgia answered her question for her when she came hunting her half an hour later and found Sally and her elders all sitting informally on the kitchen table discussing the length of the war with great heat. Georgia's mouth opened. Then she became so respectful that Sally grew alarmed. She grabbed Georgia's arm as they went out of the kitchen. "Who were those nice women I was talking to, Georgia?"

Georgia whistled softly. "Didn't

MONDAY AND TUESDAY

In the engrossing new picture, "Spitfire," starring Leslie Howard and David Niven, which plays at the Majestic Monday and Tuesday, moviegoers will meet a little-known hero, an engineer who was a poet, a designer who was an artist, a craftsman who fought for his beliefs to the death, a husband whose devotion never faltered—R. J. Mitchell, a wizard of a man.

"Spitfire" is the glowing human story of this Mitchell, the inventor of the deadliest fighting plane the world has ever known. Leslie Howard plays Mitchell, giving one of the finest performances of his career. David Niven, as a daredevil and debonaire test pilot, gives a performance of manly charm and infectious gaiety, a reckless airman of infinite daring and also of an endless string of dates with blondes and brunettes. Heading the distinguished supporting cast is the English beauty, Rosamund John, as the understanding wife of Mitchell who suspensefully watched him work himself to death for a great ideal of duty to his country.

WEDNESDAY AND THURSDAY

John Wayne's screen roles heretofore have been those of a husky outdoor action star, but the tall actor now makes his bid for romantic leading-man portrayals in RKO Radio's comedy hit, "A Lady Takes a Chance," which will be seen Wednesday and Thursday at the Majestic. Co-starred with Jean Arthur, Wayne plays the part of a rodeo rider who meets Eastern white-collar-girl heroine in a little Oregon town when he is hurled into her lap by a bucking pony. He takes her on a breathless tour of the region, with hilarious results.

Miners Going Back To Work Slowly

Pittsburgh, Nov. 6 (AP)—So deep-seated was confusion among Pennsylvania's soft-coal miners that only a comparative few of the 110,000 Friday answered UMW President John L. Lewis' "back-to-work" order.

Some locals voted to return to return to work, others voted to stay away, still others met and adjourned without taking action. In some cases, union leaders said the men demanded more information about the terms of the new contract, not yet approved by the War Labor Board, which gave the men $150 a day additional after they had worked one and a half hours more from entering to leaving the pits.

Reports from the far-flung bituminous coal section, stretching from east of Altoona to the Ohio state line, shows that the less than 10 per cent of miners back at work yesterday had increased to around 15 or 20 per cent today, with estimates of the number in the mines still vague.

Set Hearing Date For Utility Deal

Philadelphia, Nov. 6 (AP)—The Securities and Exchange commission has scheduled a hearing for Nov. 22 on an application by United Utilities, Inc., to acquire the remaining outstanding common stock of its subsidiary, the United Telephone Company of Pennsylvania.

United Utilities would pay the Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania $420,120 for the 7,002 shares of $50 par value common capital stock of United Telephone since United Utilities owns 76 per cent of its subsidiary's common stock, the acquisition of the remaining 24 per cent would permit the corporation to file a consolidated Federal income tax return and thus effect a substantial tax saving, the application stated.

Some Dismissed Workers Qualified

Harrisburg, Nov. 6 (AP)—Carl C. Tinstman, deputy State Health secretary, said Thursday it had been incorrectly reported that 20 sanitation assistants and junior investigators were dismissed because all had failed in merit examinations.

He specifically said that Joseph Flowers, of Reading, one of those released, had received a passing grade. Other Health department officials said funds for the sanitation program had been cut.

HEADS COLLEGE BOARD

Dr. John B. Laird, pastor of the Frankford Presbyterian church of Philadelphia, on Friday was elected president of the Wilson College Board of Trustees for the 24th consecutive year. H. W. Prentiss, Jr., president of Armstrong Cork company, Lancaster, was named to the board vice-presidency. The Valley National Bank of Chambersburg was re-elected treasurer.

Mrs. Grace Brown Butt, and Mrs. Floyd Hoffman. There are now 25 members. After the meeting there was a social tea with Mrs. Snyder Alleman, wife of the pastor, and Mrs. John Myers acting as hostesses.

Miss Carrie Laughman has returned to the home of her relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Baker, after spending some time as a guest of friends in York.

A family reunion took place recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gross, near Thomasville, when guests were Mr. Gross' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eli Gross, of town, and their son, Harold, his wife and daughter, Maxine, Elizabeth.

Harold R. Shetter, son of Mr. and Mrs. George L. Shetter, of the U. S. Marine Corps, has successfully passed a series of aptitude tests at Franklin and Marshall college, Lancaster, where he has been stationed, and now will remain there for several months' further training in the Officers' Training School. He is a former student at West Chester State Teachers' college.

In Paramount's musical comedy, "Let's Face It" due Friday at the Majestic theater, Bob Hope does a dance routine with Cully Richards and Dave Willock that is said to be one of the laugh highlights of his movie career. The three men, in Army uniform, go into their dance in an effort to avoid the attentions of a trio of middle-aged wives in search of romantic adventure. It is Bob's idea that only by sticking together will they be safe from the unwelcome advances of stars Eve Arden, ZaSu Pitts and Phyllis Povah and the dance is executed by the boys as though they were Siamese triplets. Some of the tunes are Cole Porter's original stage music.

Hope is co-starred in the film with that blonde blitz, Betty Hutton.

The Women's Missionary society of Trinity Lutheran church celebrated the twenty-sixth anniversary of its founding during the past week with a special program in charge of its president, Mrs. John E. Gentzler, and vice president, Mrs. Robert S. Lau. The topic, "Why Missions Must Have First Place in Today's World," was discussed by the pastor, the Rev. Sydney Alleman, and Mrs. Carl Fitzkee.

The guest speaker was Mrs. Paul Gladfelter, Jacobus, a member of the society for 18 years. Miss Beulah E. Wentz gave a history of the organization which began with nine members. Mrs. Reynolds and Mrs. Serff were presented with a religious volume and a floral tribute. Special music was given by a trio composed of Mrs. Verne Y. Brandt, Happiness Ahead...

Where will you be at 65? After a full and active life, will you be ready to relax and enjoy the remaining years—or will you have to continue working for a living or be dependent upon relatives?

There's no "success story" to a retirement income. It's simply the result of planning ahead and saving a little bit now. And it's easy to accomplish with Farm Bureau's retirement income policy, in which your life insurance needs and your retirement income needs are both adequately combined. Here is a plan that every far-sighted man and woman should investigate.
